

FEATURING

Please join P-Solve and a selection of other industry experts for an investment conference surveying the way forward for pension scheme trustees.

P-Solve will be bringing the 2017 edition of our annual roadshow to a town or city near you in early June, dates and venues are shown just below. The talks and panel session outlined are designed to help trustees find their route to meeting the pensions promise.

We would like to invite all pension managers, finance directors, trustee chairs, trustees of pension schemes or those involved in the management or governance of pension schemes to attend. Each session is provided free of charge and will be relevant for your trustee knowledge and understanding requirements, and will qualify for professional CPD.

Please pick your date and register today.

Four years older and deeper in debt

Ajeet Manjrekar

As pension schemes focus on their funding destination, we ask, where is "there"? The right destination may be less than clear. Leave it too vague and you may be heading in the wrong direction. Plan too rigidly, and you could be robbed of flexibility at a crucial juncture.

What the company owes us

Taylor Dewar, Ernst & Young

Employer covenant assessment should be an integral part of trustees' decision-making, as a matter of course. But to be really effective, it may need to go deep. Trustees need to understand the economic risks affecting the sponsor before they can set their own strategy.

No one saw it coming

William Hutchings

By the time the driverless car has made the last driving instructor redundant, ended overtaking and spawned the in-trip entertainment industry, many other changes will have happened too. Most will have limited impact. One could alter everything.

Go faster – and stay safe

Mark Davies, River and Mercantile Derivatives

As pension schemes mature their problems can become more acute. They still need to earn a return, but they're running out of capital and they have less time in hand to make up for nasty surprises. But derivatives can help them shape their potential outcomes.

Connected thinking will make all the difference

Panel session compered by Barbara Saunders

Many risks threaten the chances of reaching the destination in good time, and the solutions to managing them grow ever more complex. We speak to a panel of industry experts about negotiating this journey and avoiding potential pitfalls along the way. Experience shows that considering the risks together is the best way forward.

Feedback given from some of our previous attendees

“ One of the very best 'short' seminars (i.e. less than half a day) in twelve years as a trustee ”

“ As a fairly new MNT I found all sessions extremely useful; a good investment of my time ”

“ Another excellent event ”

“ The presenters made very technical topics completely accessible/ understandable. Thank you! ”
